Hold an Internal Discussion.

Dedicate some time during #ILW23 to discuss leadership issues and trends with your team.

Plan an interactive workshop with your team and think of ways to get them talking. You could even prepare a quiz or watch a webinar together to keep everybody engaged.

Host your own webinar.

Host your own internal or external webinar to spread the word about great leadership, and highlight key issues. Invite other prominent leadership figures to join you as a guest feature.

Share your knowledge with the world and help improve leadership standards globally.

You'll find a webinar backdrop in the Supporter's Pack.

Feature #ILW23 on your communications.

Whether you're preparing your weekly newsletter, planning your monthly team meeting, or recording a podcast – give International Leadership Week a special mention to raise awareness on the importance of great leadership.

We have a selection of visual assets available on our Supporter's Pack to help you with this.

Write a blog or a social media post.

Demonstrate your leadership knowledge by offering advice and guidance to your network, or share your own leadership journey/story to inspire others.

Have a think about trending leadership issues or discussions, and offer your expertise on the matter.

Don't forget to tag The Institute on LinkedIn and we'll help to amplify your voice.

Allocate time for personal development.

Spend some time working on your own leadership skills. Whether you're catching up on past webinars, completing worksheets or reading a blog – share your findings with the community, and let us know how you're actively developing your abilities.

Topics you can focus on...

Managing remote teams; embracing change; future-readiness and business agility; diversity & inclusion; young leadership; emotional intelligence or toxic workplace environments.
